Then he was kicked several times; in the thigh, stomach and ankle," even after he denied involvement. in the slaying.

According to Stainthorp, the afflictions stem from a "de facto policy" Burge enacted along with other detectives during a 13-year period from 1972 to 1985.

Despite at least two other lawsuits against the officials, Stainthorp claims three successive police superintendents, including current chief LeRoy Martin, have ignored the alleged attrocities.

An alleged unwritten "code of silence" reportedly has supressed evidence allegedly linking the officers to the tactics until an unidentified member of the detective unit submitted a letter to the People's Law Office disclosing the brutal methods and naming the participants, the suit charges.

The Illinois Appelate court reportedly ruled recently Burge and his men inflicted unlawful and brutal actions against Banks and released him after he served seven years of his sentence. Stainthorp alleges.

Last winter, Amnesty International called for an independent investigation into the allegations,

Probers seek action against cop

By Les Hausner Staff Writter

The Police Department's Office of Professional Standards has requested that action be taken against a commander accused, along with some of his detectives, of using excessive force on, suspects in custody.

The OPS report on Cmdr. Jon Burge, a decorated Vietnam War veteran, is being reviewed by city attorneys, said Andrea Swearingen, a spokeswom-an for the city corporation counsel's office.

She said that the report—a "request for action"-was received by her department Oct. 25 and that a review by city lawyers could take 30 days, which she said is standard procedure. Members of the Coalition to End Police were named in a $16 million lawsuit filed on behalf of Gregory Banks, who said he was tortured into falsely confessing to a murder. Banks was convicted in 1983, but the Illinois Appellate Court overturned the conviction, saying the confession was not voluntary.

A convicted killer, Andrew Wilson, also filed a brutality suit against Burge and two other detectives. Wilson and his brother, Jackie Wilson, were tried and convicted twice for the 1982 murders of Chicago police Officers Wil-liam Fahey and Richard O'Brien.

In 1989, two separate federal juries refused to award Andrew Wilson any damages. The allegations centered on Area 2 headquarters, 727 E. 111th St., where Burge, who now commands Area 3 headquarters. previously had been based.

 London-based Amnesty International called last December for an investigation into allegations that Chicago police systematically used excessive force on suspects between 1972 and 1984: **

Brutality held a press conference Thursday at 180 N. La Salle, where the corporation counsel's offices are, to demand that Burge be immediately suspended.

The request for action "should be sufficient to suspend Burge," said Mary Powers of Glencoe, coordinator of Citizens Alert, one of the coalition's 35 organizations.

"We urge the counsel to act expediently on this case, regardless of the political fallout," she said. Her organization has been seeking Burge's firing since 1989.

Swearingen said a request for action "doesnot automatically mean termination." T counsel also could reject the OPS findings

Brutality charges to be reviewed

Brighton Park commander allegedly tortured suspects

By David Jackson

Police Supt. LeRoy Martin has asked city attorneys to review charges that a police commander tortured suspects in police custody.

Police union head John Dineen said that this type of "request for action" is typically made when the superintendent is preparing to discharge an officer, although Dineen said he had not seen the file in question.

The request from Martin came after an investigation by the police office of professional standards, the department's disciplinary arm. The results of that investigation have not been released.

On Oct. 25, Martin requested that city attorneys review the charges against Cmdr. Jon Burge, who currently heads the Brighton Park Area, according to Andrea Swearingen, a spokeswoman for the city corporation counsel's office.

Swearingen would not divulge any details or say if the request for action pertained to any other officers.

She said that the request for action would be acted on within 30 days from the day it was received, and said it "does not necessarily mean termination."

Burge said he was unaware of the status of any complaints filed against him. He declined to comment further Burge has been the target of a long-running, complex federal brutality suit filed by convicted police murderer Andrew Wilson, who alleged that he was tortured by electroshock by Burge and other officers under his command while in police custody in February of 1982.

A first trial on the charges ended with a hung jury in 1989.

After a second trial, a jury found that the city had a policy of allowing its police officers to beat or otherwise harm people suspected of killing police officers.

There was no finding that Wilson was injured pursuant to that policy. The second civil jury also found that Burge did not participate in mistreating Wilson, or allow his officers to

Attorneys for Burge presented evidence that some of Wilson's injuries were caused by two "wagon crew" officers not under Burge's command, while other injuries were self-inflicted.

One of those two officers died in 1983, while the other retired and moved to Florida. None of Burge's officers were found liable.

Wilson's appeal of the verdict is pending.

Attorney Jeffrey Haas, who represented Wilson, said affidavits from eight other prisoners who said they were tortured while in custody at Area Two were kept from the jury, but have since been made a part of the standards office investigations.

According to Dineen, when the police standards office sustains charges against an officer, it sends a recommendation to Martin.

If Martin is going to discharge the officer, Dineen said, he asks city attorneys to prepare charges before the Police Board.

"We heard that they had made the recommendation, and it's been laying on a desk," Dineen said.

Firing is urged if brutality charges are upheld

By Scott Fornek Staff Writer

One of the city's top police commanders was suspended Friday with a recommendation he be fired if charges he used excessive force against suspects in his custody are upheld.

The Police Department made the recommendation to the Police Board about Jon G. Burge, commander of the Southwest Side's Area 3 detective division, and two of his detectives.

Burge and the two detectives, who were not identified, were suspended without pay for 30 days by Police Supt. LeRoy Martin. The three officers are accused of using excessive force in a 1982 investigation of the murder of two Chicago police officers.

Burge was the commanding officer of South Side Area 2's violent crimes unit at the time.

After an investigation, the po-

Burge and the two detectives, slice Office of Professional Standards recommended the three officers be terminated if the Police Supt. LeRoy Martin. The Board sustains the accusations.

About 10 days after receiving the official charges prepared by the city Law Department, the board will hold an initial hearing.

Law Department officials said Thursday that their review of the Office of Professional Standards' report could take another two weeks.

A group seeking Burge's firing since 1989 held a press conference outside the Law Department's offices Thursday to demand the suspension. Members of the Coalition to End Police Brutality urged the corporation counsel to act swiftly and ignore possible political fallout.

Burge also has been named in two civil suits accusing him of brutality.

Last month, he and two police officers. Peter Dignan and Charles Grunhard, were named in a $16 million lawsuit filed on behalf of Gregory Banks. Banks said he was tortured into falsely confessing to a murder. His 1983 conviction later was overturned on appeal.

A brutality case also was filed against Burge and two other detectives by Andrew Wilson, who with his brother, Jackie, was convicted twice for the 1982 murders of police officers William Fahey and Richard O'Brien. Two federal juries refused to award Wilson any damages in 1989.

According to Stainthorp, the afflictions stem from a "de facto policy" Burge enacted along with other detectives during a 13-year period from 1972 to 1985.

Despite at least two other lawsuits against the officials, Stainthorp claims three successive police superintendents, including current chief LeRoy Martin, have ignored the alleged attrocities.

An alleged unwritten "code of silence" reportedly has supressed evidence allegedly linking the officers to the tactics until an unidentified member of the detective unit submitted a letter to the People's Law Office disclosing the brutal methods and naming the participants, the suit charges.

The Illinois Appelate court reportedly ruled recently Burge and his men inflicted unlawful and brutal actions against Banks and released him after he served seven years of his sentence, Stainthorp alleges.

The suit charged Sgt. John Byrne and Detectives Peter Dignan, Robert Dwyer and Charles Grunhard with torturing Banks and accused Cmdr. Jon Burge, then in charge of the Area 2 violent crimes unit, of "encouraging and supervising this violence."

A spokesman for the Chicago Police Department had no comment on the lawsuit, which seeks $16 million in damages.

The suit listed 23 other alleged incidents in which suspects, mostly blacks and Hispanics, were beaten by Area 2 detectives between 1972 and 1985.

$16 million suit alleges torture by city cops

By Rosalind Rossi Federal Building Reporter

A Chicago man filed a $16 million lawsuit Thursday charging that a plastic bag was placed over his head at Area 2 police head-quarters in 1983 and he was tortured into falsely confessing to a murder.

The suit, filed on behalf of Gregory Banks, also alleged that 11 other suspects were tortured with plastic bags at Area 2 between 1982 and 1987, and others have been subjected to electroshock or suspended by their hand-cuffs.

Banks was convicted of murder in 1983, but the Illinois Appellate Court threw out the conviction in 1989, saying his confession was involuntary. The murder charge was dismissed for lack of evidence in 1990, and Banks was freed after spending seven years in prison.

His attorney, John Stainthorp, said Banks originally told police he killed Leon Barkan in self-defense, but Area 2 detectives "tortured" him until he lied that the fatal shooting occured during a robbery attempt.

Detectives allegedly put a gun in his mouth, struck him in the chest with a flashlight and sat on top of him, the lawsuit said.

Accused of the brutality were Lt. Jon Burge, then commander of the Area 2 Violent Crimes Unit and now commander of Area 3, and Detectives Robert Dwyer, Peter Dignan and Charles Grunhard. The city also was named as a defendant for allowing a "policy and practice of [police] brutality and torture."

Thursday's suit was filed by the same three attorneys who represented convicted murderer Andrew Wilson in a brutality suit against Burge. After two 1989 trials, two separate juries refused to award Wilson any damages.

Brutality case called illegal

· ••

By Charles Nicodemus

The city is barred from asking the Police Board to fire Cmdr. Jon Burge for brutality because city attorneys denied during two 1989 lawsuits that any such brutality occurred, Burge's lawyers contend in a federal court memo.

The city's about-face is illegal and "smacks of gamesmanship," said attorneys William Kunkle Jr.

and Joseph Roddy.

The memo was submitted Monday in support of a U.S. District Court suit filed by Burge and two of his detectives, John Yucaitis and Patrick O'Hara. The suit seeks to head off the Police Board hearing of charges that the three officers tortured or condoned brutality against convicted cop killer Andrew Wilson.

Meanwhile, the Police Board hearing was postponed for at least a week, until Jan. 28. Hearing examiner Michael Berland set back the session because of five new motions filed by Kunkle and Roddy seeking to toss out the brutality charges or severely limit testimony during the proceeding.

In the memo, Kunkle and Roddy pointed out that in 1989 Wilson had twice unsuccessfully sued Burge, the two detectives and the city in federal court. Wilson sought damages for alleged brutality during his Feb. 11, 1982, arrest and questioning in the murder of two police officers.

Burge's attorneys said that during the two civil trials, city attorneys repeatedly denied the officers brutalized Wilson, and even said his injuries apparently were inflicted by two other officers. (Indicate page, name of newspaper, city and state.)

3 cops must face hearing on charges öf torture

By Charles Nicodemus Staff Writer

A federal judge Thursday dismissed suspended police Cmdr. Jon Burge's suit to block a Police Board hearing on charges that he and two of his detectives tortured convicted cop killer Jackie Wilson to force his confession.

U.S. District Judge Milton Shadur rejected a request by Burge and Detectives John Yucaitis and Patrick O'Hara to bar the Jan. 28 hearing. Shadur said: "It would be a serious distortion" of the legal process to forbid a Police Board hearing on the controversial case because of any of the legal technicalities raised by the officers' lawyer, William Kunkle Jr.

Kunkle had contended that Wilson's two unsuccessful federal civil damage suits against the three policemen already had demonstrated there was no proof they had any connection with the injuries Wilson suffered after his arrest in February, 1982, in the murder of two gang crimes unit officers.

But Shadur said there was "highly material evidence" that had been excluded from the earlier cases. "The public is entitled to a determination of whether, on the basis of all the evidence, these men are entitled to remain in a position of trust," he said.

The Police Department's Office of Professional Standards has recommended that the officers, who were suspended without pay in November, be fired.

Simmering police torture case nears hearing

Associated Press

A police torture complaint that has festered for 10 years in Chicago is nearing a showdown amid charges of betrayal, cover-up and racial divi-sion within the police force.

Amnesty International and dozens of local civil-rights groups contend the alleged torture of convicted copkiller Andrew Wilson only hints at the atrocities black suspects have suffered at the hands of white Chicago police officers for years.

'It's very important that the police board ultimately know the full parameters of what went on here," said Flint Taylor, one of Wilson's lawyers. He charged that the mayor and police superintendent were trying to "cut their losses" with the Wilson case while trying to suppress evidence of systematic torture.

But the officers union says the dismissal hearing beginning Feb. 10 for Cmdr. Jon Burge and two detectives is an attempt by a politically ambitious departmental enforcer to nail the men on phony charges that went unproven through a previous inter-nal investigation and two civil law-

William Nolan, local and national treasurer for the Fraternal Order of Police, which is paying for the suspended officers' defense, and other white officers denied any racial divisiveness on the force.

They see the dismissal hearing as a bid by Gayle Shines, the head of the Office of Professional Standards, to grease her political career path.

Burge's backers fear the fix is in Having lost the mayor's and police chief's support, they are convinced the Chicago Police Board hearing is a sham.

"In two federal cases, the city of Chicago defended these officers in court, saying they were not brutal," he said. "Now the city is saying they were brutal. It defies any sense of logic at all."

But some black officers have broken the department's unwritten code of silence to speak out against Burge.

"Burge has a reputation among older African-American officers of being a torturer," said officer Jerry Crawley, a 24-year department veteran who heads the Black Officers United for Justice and Equality.

Mayor Richard M. Daley has defended both his administration's decision last fall to seek the officers' dismissal and his own refusal to investigate Wilson's brutality complaint 10 years ago when Daley was the Cook County state's attorney. The mayor's office referred questions about the case to the city's legal department.

"The city does not tolerate any kind of brutality and we are pursuing with a strong case and a legal case," spokeswoman Andrea Brands said.

The case centers on Wilson's allegation that Burge and detective John Yucaitis tortured him to extract a confession that Wilson and his brother Jackie gunned down two officers during a routine traffic stop Feb. 14, 1982.

Wilson contends Burge and Yucaitis beat, kicked and shocked him, suffocated him with a garbage bag and handcuffed him to a scalding radiator while detective Patrick O'Hara stood by.

The confession was used to convict the Wilson brothers, who are serving life sentences without parole for the murders. Andrew's conviction was overturned in 1987 by the Illinois Supreme Court, which found his confession resulted from coercion. He was convicted at a second trial in 1989.

The police department's Office of Professional Standards concluded in 1985 that there was not enough evidence to sustain Wilson's brutality complaint.

Wilson filed a civil lawsuit against the three officers in U.S. District Court in 1988 alleging brutality. The trial ended in a hung jury.

The jury at a second civil trial in 1989 found that the city and police department condoned the mistreatment of suspects in police killings, but did not find the three officers liable.

Local civil-rights groups pressed harder for Burge's dismissal. Shines, appointed by Daley in May 1990 to head the Office of Professional Standards, oversaw a second investigation and recommended last fall that the officers be fired. Police Superintendent Leroy Martin and the city's legal department agreed.

In December 1990, the humanrights watchdog group Amnesty International released a report alleging systematic torture of suspects in Burge's predominantly black South Side district from 1972 to 1984.

Police brutality hearing moved for security

By Charles Nicodemus Staff Writer

The hearing on police brutality charges against former Area 2 Cmdr. Jon Burge and two of his detectives is being transferred to the Dirksen Federal Building for security reasons, it was announced Wednesday.

Hearing officer Michael Berland said the proceedings, which will lopen at 9 a.m. Monday, will be held in the U.S. District Court's 25th floor ceremonial courtroom, by agreement with attorneys for Burge and the city.

The Police Board hearing, which is expected to run until mid-March, had been slated for the main auditorium in Police Headquarters, 1121 S. State. But because the 10-year-old case is so controversial and drew a record audience of 55 people to its first preliminary session Nov. 25, Berland said, "We have been concerned about security."

All people going to upper floors of the Dirksen building, 219 S. Dearborn, must pass through metal detectors.

The announcement came at a preliminary session to review the credentials of one of the prosecution's key witnesses, Dr. Robert Kirschner, a forensic pathologist at Cook County Hospital.

Burge and Detective John Yucaitis have been charged by the Police Department's Office of Professional Standards with torturing convicted cop killer Andrew Wilson in February, 1982, to obtain his confession in the slaying of two Chicago police officers. Detective Patrick O'Hara is accused of witnessing the torture and failing to report it. All three have been suspended without pay.

Kirschner, an expert on torture, is expected to testify that evidence showed Wilson was tortured in police custody. William Kunkle, Burge's attorney, sought to stress Wednesday that Kirschner had no firsthand knowledge of Wilson's injuries and that torture evidence noted by Kirschner could have had other causes.

Report cites 12 years of S. Side cop brutality

By Charles Nicodemus Staff Writer

A long-suppressed Police Department report says crime suspects were "systematically" brutalized at Area 2 detective headquarters for 12 years and that "particular" top commanders there knew of the abuses.

The October, 1990, study of 50 alleged abuse victims by an investigator for the department's civilian-staffed Office of Professional Standards was ordered released Friday by U.S. District Judge Milton I. Shadur in connection with a police brutality suit.

nection with a police brutality suit.
Police Supt. LeRoy Martin, who commanded the Far South Side head-quarters for nine months during the 1974-to-1986 period studied, attacked the report prepared by investigator Michael Goldston.

"The methodology used for the report is flawed and unsubstantiated, bringing into serious question the credibility of its conclusions," Martin said.

He said a preliminary review of the report by the Washington-based Police Foundation found that because of "gaps in the data" and other "inconsistencies," the material does "not necessarily support investigator Goldston's conclusion" of systematic abuse.

As for the allegation that certain unidentified Area 2 commanders were aware of the abuse of suspects, Martin said, "It's a lie, an outright lie. Whoever said that doesn't know what they're talking about."

Mayor Daley also lashed out at the report, saying its conclusions were "too broad" and were based in part on "allegations still under investigation."

Daley, state's attorney during part of the period studied, has been accused by critics of failing to investigate allegations of police misconduct.

Release of the Goldston report comes three days before the opening of civilian Police Board hearings on Office of Professional Standards brutality charges against Cmdr. Jon Burge and two of his detectives. Burge formerly headed the Area 2 violent crimes unit, and the Goldston study was included in the OPS investigation of him.

The hearings starting Monday will probe allegations by convicted cop killer Andrew Wilson that Burge and Detective John Yucaitis tortured him to obtain his confession in February, 1982, and that Detective Patrick O'Hara was aware of the torture and failed to report it.

Release of the Goldston report was forced Friday by attorney Flint Taylor. He represented Wilson in two unsuccessful federal damage suits against Burge and was researching an unrelated brutality case when the Goldston report came to light.

Taylor said Martin "sat on" the

Police brutality study kept sealed for months

By Charles Nicodemus Staff Writer

Like a ticking time bomb, the "Goldston report," which charged longtime police brutality at Area 2 detective headquarters, lay sealed in U.S. District Court files for months

U.S. District Court files for months.
Friday, it exploded into view—with Police Supt. LeRoy Martin expressing outrage at its charge that "systematic" abuses were condoned by commanders at Area 2, which Martin once headed.

The report cited cases in which police allegedly gave electrical shocks to prisoners by attaching alligator clips to various parts of their bodies, the current being generated by a device resembling a hand-crank telephone box. Other alleged torture included a practice known as "bagging" in which a plastic bag would be tied around the neck of a suspect, leading the prisoner to believe he was going to suffocate. In some cases, the prisoner passed out, the report said.

The report also angered Mayor Daley and focused further attention on tomorrow's opening of police brutality hearings for former Cmdr. Jon Burge and two other officers.

After the long-secret study was made public Friday in federal court, Daley's and Martin's criticisms raised serious questions about its validity.

But whatever the report's merits, Daley's reaction—condemning the report as "too broad" and its charges as "unsubstantiated"—seemed ironic.

The 160-page statistical study and analysis was written by Michael Gold-ston, an investigator for the Office of Professional Standards, the Police Department's civilian-staffed unit created to investigate allegations of brutality.

The agency is headed by Gayle Shines, whom Daley named to the job in May, 1990, to toughen up the much-criticized agency.

Shines supervised the Goldston study of 50 allegations of police brutality at Area 2 between 1974 and 1986. Shines sent it to Martin on Nov. 2, 1990, calling it a "masterful job" whose "conclusions are compelling."

At the same time, Shines also gave Martin another report, by investigator Francine Sanders. It dealt only with convicted cop-killer Andrew Wilson's contention that his confession had been extracted through torture by Burge and his detectives.

One year later, Martin used the Sanders report as the basis for his recommendation to the Police Board that Burge and two detectives, John Yucaitis and Patrick O'Hara, be fired.

But the Goldston report never was publicized.

Attorney Flint Taylor, who forced its disclosure last week, contends that Martin "covered up the report" because Martin was Area 2 detective commander for nine months in 1983.

Martin retorted that anyone who said any Area 2 commander had condoned brutality was lying. He said he had kept the Goldston report secret because he believed Goldston's methods and findings were flawed.

To get an "independent" evaluation, Martin said, he contacted the Police Foundation, a Washington, D.C. based "think tank" staffed by former police officials, in October, 1991.

Taylor on Friday called the action "unprecedented" and said the foundation was not "independent."

Taylor, an attorney with the People's Law Office and a crusader against police brutality, learned of the report last year while preparing for the trial of an unrelated brutality lawsuit. The city provided a copy only on the condition that it remain secret.

U.S. District Judge Milton Shadur unsealed the report Friday.

Martin then revealed a preliminary response from the Police Foundation, which questioned the report's conclusions.

Correspondence between Martin and the Police Foundation, released later Friday by Martin to discredit the Goldston report, also reveals Burge was the target of 51 percent of the abuse charges from the 50 alleged victims who figured in the OPS study.

William Kunkle, Burge's attorney.

William Kunkle, Burge's attorney, called the report "garbage" and stressed that it was inadmissible in the upcoming hearings.

Taylor noted that tickets for a fundraiser to help pay the accused officers' legal bills are being sold in district police stations. Said Taylor:

"On the one hand, we have a Police Department report detailing systematic police brutality, and on the other hand, police are peddling tickets in police stations in an attempt to help keep officers accused of brutality on the force.

"Looks like we have South Africanstyle police repression in Chicago."

At one point, following an alleged gruesome beating at Area 2 detective headquarters, Wilson claimed Burge entered a room alone and clamored, "Fun Time!" In the company of another officer, Burge allegedly handcuffed Wilson's hands to a wall while Wilson knelt in front of a radiator.

After clamping the electrodes attached to a black box to hissmall fingers, Burge cranked the hand generator, causing an electronic current to surge through Wilson's bod," he alleged.

"He kept cranking it," recalled Wilson nonchalantly while demonstrating on his knees. "It made my teeth grind together. I was hollering for help but he didn't have to stop because I couldn't (get the clamps) off."

Wilson contends the box was used with limited success two other times but he was able to knee an officer in the groin and another time release the electrodes from attacks, Wilson accused another officer of attempting to suffocate him with a garbage bag.

According to Wilson's testimony, moments later, Burge tortured him with a foot-long cattle prod, which resembled a curling iron with a wire protruding from one end.

While remaining cuffed in front of the radiator, Wilson claimed Burge "rubbed it around my legs up and down very slowly (about three or four times). It was tingling (feeling.) On the last pass, he. jabbed it into the center of my back. (The impact) slammed me into the grill."

Wilson then began regurgitating blood and the torture momentarily stopped, he alleged.

When Burge confronted him again hours later at another location, Wilson said the lieutenant "was playing with his gun in my mouth clicking it back and forth. I agreed to make a statement to keep from getting shot," he claim-

Several police officers sat with the brother of William Fahey, one of the officers whom Wilson was convicted of killing. Members of anti-police brutality groups were also in attendence.

> Despite the graphic testimony, Wilson, many times, appeared confused and uncertain about his account as evidenced by mistakenly identifying officers. The defendant's attorney, William Kunkle, will most likely capitalize on the inconsistencies in the days to come.

Officer John Dineen president of the Fraternal Order of Police, said late Monday Wilson's story has changed dramatically throughout the years and that the word of a convicted killer is less than convincing.

Throughout the decade-long investigation, the officers have maintained their innocence and dressed in blue jacket and jean, were acquitted by two civil juries.

Burge-case panel hears of torture

By Sharman Stein

Ten years after his arrest for the killing of two police officers, Andrew Wilson lifted his shirt. Monday and displayed to a packed courtroom the scars he says he suffered while being tortured by three Chicago police officers.

Wilson was the first witness Monday in the first day of hearings before the Police Board, which may hear four to six weeks of testimony.

The city is seeking for the first time, through this administrative proceeding, to dismiss Cmdr. Jon Burge, Detective John A. Yucaitis and Detective Patrick J. O'Hara, the officers accused of torturing Wilson.

The officers, all of whom were present at the hearing, deny the charges, which have not been proved in two federal court cases and a previous police investigation

Burge, Yucaitis and O'Hara have been suspended since November. If the charges are sustained, Burge would be the highest-ranking Chicago police official to be dismissed in 20

Andrew Wilson and his brother, Jackie, were convicted of the murders and are serving life sentences without parole.

"The question is, why did this happen?" said city attorney June Ghezzi, in an opening statement. "It happened for two reasons. He was just arrested for the murder of two Chicago police officers, and there had been three deaths of police officers over one week.

of police officers over one week.

"The first purpose was to extract a confession," Ghezzi said.

"The second was to extract a pound of flesh, to punish him because the officers were so upset about the murder of the police nation of Wilson, Kunkle insisted whereabouts and activities from Feb. 9, 1982, when the police officers were murdered, and Feb. 14, 1982, when Wilson was arrested at a South Side apartment.

William Kunkle Jr., one of the lawyers for the three accused officers, reserved his opening statement for a later time.

Kunkle insisted that during those days Wilson had time to learn from other people what the police knew about his involvement in the shootings of the officers and therefore how to plan his later statements of torture when he was arrested.

Although Wilson took the 5th Amendment and refused to answer many of the questions at the advice of an attorney representing him in a criminal appeal, Kunkle said he expected to "utilize the right of negative inference" regarding Wilson's refusal to answer.

Hearing Officer Michael Berland

granted the request.

Wilson, who was permitted at the city's request to testify without wearing handcuffs or manacles, detailed in a low-key voice the beatings, electrical shocks and choking he said he suffered at the hands of Burge and others following his arrest at 5:15 a.m. that Feb.

Burge and the other two officers kept a steady eye on Wilson and occasionally looked at each other during his testimony.

Frequently sounding irritated by the questions, Wilson described how he was taken by police officers to a second-floor room at the old Burnside Area detective headquarters at 9059 S. Cottage Grove Ave. There, he said, Yucaitis, among others, "started beating me up, hitting me, kicking me, slapping me, basically just beating up on me."

Wilson said officers hit him with their fists, kicked him, dragged him abuse stopped, around the room, and knocked Later, Wilson said, Burge took him onto the floor. He said an officer placed a plastic garbage bag over his head until he bit a hole through it, and then threw him against a window, causing the glass to shatter.

When Burge entered the room during some of the beating, Wilson testified, he [Burge] observed what was happening. "He said if it had been him, he wouldn't have messed my face up, he wouldn't damage me where it would be noticed," Wilson said.

Later, Wilson said, first Yucaitis and later Burge shocked him with a "black box" by attaching clips to his ear and nostril and cranking the box to produce an electrical current. The shock was so great in the first session, Wilson said, that he "kneed" Yucaitis, who then punched him in the mouth.

He said Yucaitis continued cranking the box and shocking him, but Wilson's shouts brought attention to the room and the altennio...

When Wilson was able to nudge off the clips on his ears by lowering his chin against his shoulder, Wilson said, Burge stretched him across the radiator in the room, handcuffed him in place and re-attached the clamps to his little

"I was hollering for help," Wilson said. "I think I spit some blood out, and he stopped."

Wilson also testified that when she was later transported to Wentworth Area headquarters, where he was urged to make a statement, he was left alone in a room with Burge.

"He had his gun inside my mouth, and he was clicking it back and forth, cocking it," Wilson said. "He told me that if I gave a statement, what happened earlier wouldn't reoccur.'

In his initial cross-examination, Kunkle asked Wilson whether any of the officers had questioned him about the killing of the police officers, to which Wilson said no. Kunkle then tried to ascertain where Wilson slept on the nights, before his arrest, whether he was worried about anything and other questions related to Wilson's; whereabouts and state of mind.

"I am arguing that what happened between Feb. 9 and Feb. 14 is important to the credibility of Wilson's account of what happened at the police stations on Feb. 14," Kunkle said.

An internal Police Department An internal Police Department report released Friday by a federal court judge charges that "systematic torture" was perpetrated by at least seven police officers at the South Side police station from 1973 to 1986 and that police supervisors in the Burnside Area know about and condoned the knew about and condoned the
